FARMER MEETS INSTANT DEATH.

IS THROWN FROM RIG ON HIS WAY HOME.

Horses ran Away and the Buggy Strikes Obstruction and Occupant is Thrown to Ground, Breaking his Neck and Causing Death.

Erick Johnson, a farmer living in the town of Sherry, met instant death on Thursday evening while on his way home from this city, he being thrown from his vehicle in such a manner that his neck was broken.

The time and manner of Johnson's death is not known exactly as he was alone when the accident happened, and he was not found until about 8:30 that evening, at which time he had been dead for some time.

Johnson left this city about 6:30 that evening in company with Andrew Anderson. He was somewhat under the influence of liquor at the time and Anderson states that he got him to go along with him to drive the horse.
Anderson states that after they left the city Johnson was not satisfied with the manner in which Anderson was driving, and that he took the lines from him and drove himself, whipping the horse and making it go at a rapid rate. Anderson was afraid that some accident would happen and when the two reached Derrick's place on the outskirts of the city he got out and allowed Johnson to proceed on his way home alone.

After being at the saloon awhile
Martin Olin came along and young Anderson got in with him and proceeded on his way toward home. When near Julius Mathews place their team stopped and refused to go further.

Getting out to see what was the matter
they found Johnson lying in the road dead. The road was narrow and they were unable to get by without moving the body, so they rolled it to one side and went to Mr. Mathew's place and telephoned to this city.

Justice Cooper was notified and he went to the scene of the accident and impaneled a coroners jury, which viewed the remains and adjourned until next morning. They found a bruised spot on Johnson's head and his neck was broken, and a verdict of accidental death was brought in.
There were no witnesses to the accident and Anderson's testimony was about as given above.

Johnson was a man about thirty-five years old and leaves a wife and two children. He was a new settler in this county, having come here from the old country a year ago last June.
He settled on a farm in Sherry where he had constructed a log shanty in which he and his family lived. The shanty had been built only recently and is said to be in an incomplete condition, the family being very poor.
When found Johnson had no money in his possession, nor anything of value.

A Noble Charity.

The Children's Home Society of Wisconsin was incorporated in December, 1892. In those years the busy workers have taken charge of and housed fourteen hundred and twenty-five orphan and dependent children.

The work is based on the philosophy of creation, viz., every child needs and longs for domestic life and love.
Within the bounds of Wisconsin a good family home can be found for every homeless child in Wisconsin.
This Society is placing these helpless children at the rate of a child every other day.

Good citizens should co-operate in every way, possible with these worthy people, and so build up a better community.

In the time above mentioned, this Society has relieved this County of the support of ten children. We surely owe them a debt of gratitude. Rev.
L. G. Carr of Fond du Lac represents this Beautiful Charity in Wood Co.

It's like a "dip in the fountain of youth." Touches the cheek so gently that "youth lingers on the face of old age." That's what Rocky Mountain Tea does. 35 cents at Johnson, Hill

TRIPLE TRADEGY OCCURS AT BIRON.

THREE YOUNG PEOPLE DROWNED
IN THE RIVER.

Six Attempt to Cross Stream Above the Dam
When Their Boat Sinks and Three are Drowned.—Were on their way to a Dance
When the Accident Occurs.

One of the most shocking accidents that has occurred in this vicinity for a long time, happened at Biron on Thursday evening, when three young people were drowned while attempting to cross the Wisconsin river, while in company with three others, the entire party being on their way to attend a dance that was being held on the north side of the river.

The drowned are Nellie Olson, Emma Mails and Carl Mails, the last two being brother and sister, and the boy drowned while attempting to save the girls from death, he having reached the shore in safety and then gone back to rescue the girls when he was caught by one of them and sank beneath the water to appear no more.

The party that started to attend the dance that evening were Carl Mails, Emma Mails, Nellie Olson, Henry
Martin, Fred Shearier and Varnum Shearier. It seems that the four boys had intended to go to the dance alone at first, and it was only at the last moment that they consented to take the young ladies along. The boat was known to be rather small for the cargo it had to carry but they all embarked and started to cross the river at about 8:30 o'clock. The party was above the dam and the water was perfectly quiet, but deep, and no difficulty was encountered until only a short distance from the north shore. It appears that the boat had leaked in some water in making the passage across and when near the north shore was in rather a tippy condition from this cause, and when only a few rods from the shore there was an extra lurch and the boat filled and went down.

When the boat filled, the entire party was very close to the shore and the young men had no trouble in getting to dry land. The girls attempted to follow them but were unable to do so, and when the young men got to shore Fred Shearier and Carl Mails, who were good swimmers, removed their coats and swam out to try to rescue the girls. It seems that young Mails succeeded in getting hold of one of the girls, tho it is not known which one, but she must also have caught hold of him and before he could make any progress toward shore or do anything to help his drowning companion he was pulled beneath the water and drowned.

Those of the party who had succeeded in reaching shore gave the alarm as quickly as possible, crossing to the south shore again by way of the dam.
Help was soon at hand and a search was at once begun for the bodies. It is said, however, that some time elapsed before they were recovered, and when a doctor arrived on the scene it was about 10:30 o'clock, something like two hours after the accident occurred.
Drs. Pomainville and Loose from this city were called to the scene of the tragedy, but so much time had elapsed that there was no prospects of resuscitating the inanimate forms, and tho everything was done that was possible, the unfortunate ones were beyond human help.

Justice Cooper of this city empanelled a jury that night, this consisting of A. L. Akey, Fred Laughlin, Emil Weseberg, John Johnson, Louis Gross and Nic Kartheiser. The jury viewed the remains and met next morning to examine witnesses and when this had been done a verdict of accidental drowning was returned in accordance with the facts as stated above.

The funeral of the three young people occurred on Sunday afternoon and never was such a large number seen in attendance at an event of this sort.
Short services were held at Biron at the homes of the deceased, Rev.
Mellicke conducting those at the home of Chris. Mails, and Rev. Groenfeldt at the home of Christ Olson.

The funeral party then came to this city to the German Moravian church where sermons were preached in English German and Norwegian. There was an immense crowd in attendance, only a fraction of them being able to get inside the church. After the services were over those in attendance viewed the bodies and it took an hour and ten minutes for them to march thru the church. Carl Mails was a member of the Woodmen of the World, and this organization attended in a body, there being over a hundred of the members in line.

It was five o'clock before the cortege got away from the church and the services at the cemetery were not finished until after seven.

Carl Mails, the drowned boy, was

POST OFFICES TO BE JOINED.

PETITION BEING CIRCULATED FOR THAT PURPOSE.

Means That we Will Have Free Delivery in the Course of Time Though the Change may not be Made for a year.

A petition is being circulated and there is no doubt that it will be liberally signed asking the government to consolidate the postoffices in the city and make one office, with a station on the west side. The object is to get the two offices together and then have free delivery in the city. It may take some time to accomplish this, however, as the receipts of the two offices were sufficient last year to give us free delivery, it is entirely probable that the offices will have to be consolidated a year in order to show what the receipts of the office will be, and whether it it will be sufficient for free delivery.

The petition that is being circulated is as follows: "We, the undersigned residents of Grand Rapids and patrons of the Centralia and Grand Rapids postoffices, being desirous of securing free delivery of mail in the city of Grand Rapids, hereby respectfully petition that the post offices in Grand Rapids be consolidated and that a station be continued on the west side in place of the Centralia post office and that the present postmaster, Robert A.
McDonald, be continued in charge of that office. The present service is poor and unsatisfactory and delivery of mail on the west side is greatly retarded."

During an interview with Postmaster McDonald this morning, that gentleman stated that it seemed to be the general wish of the public to have the two offices consolidated and if this were so he had no objection to the move and was rather in favor of it. In his opinion it would make an improvement in the mail service, which was the thing wished by all. As to how long it will be before the change can be made is all conjecture, but it will probably take some time, as such matters move very slowly.

Mrs. C. E. Roberts, San Francisco, Cal.: would not be without Rocky Mountain Tea in our house. It's a great family remedy. Makes and keeps us well. Johnson, Hill & Co.

STARTED UP MONDAY.

The Badger Box and Lumber Co. now operated by Steam.

The new steam engine and boilers which were in process of installation for several months past, were got in working order on Saturday and on Monday the plant started up under steam. The power is now furnished by a 200 horse power, Corliss type engine and tho only from 100 to 125 horse power will be used at first it is expected that later on the entire power of the engine will be called into use by the addition of more machinery.

While the engine has been installed an addition has been built to the factory for the accommodation of more machinery. This addition is 45x126 and just doubles the size of the factory.
Another nailing machine has been put in, three box saws and also board matchers. It is figured that when the new machinery is put in operation it will give the factory a capacity of 30 cars of box shooks a month.

By the enlargement of the plant and putting in steam it is expected that considerable saving can be effected, as there is a large amount of scraps and shavings, all of which can be utilized for fuel.

The officers of the company now are
A. H. Stange of Merrill, president; J.
S. Thompson, vice president and E.
W. Ellis, secretary and treasurer.
All of the parties interested seem to be gentlemen of enterprise, and the rapid growth of the plant since its first establishment would indicate that the output of the factory has been well received wherever it has been placed.

Adamson Wins the Match.

The wrestling match at Marshfield last Thursday evening resulted in a victory for Adamson, he gaining the second third and fourth falls, after losing the first one. Beell put up a plucky fight and won the first fall, and it took Adamson 51 minutes to gain the second, but he continued a winner to the end.

The Opera house was crowded to the doors and the gate receipts amounted to some $450. Those who attended pronounced it one of the best matches that has ever occurred in this part of the country. This is the sixth time the Beell and Adamson have met, and each have won three of the matches, but it is doubtful if they will ever meet again.

STRANGERS YET

By
CLINTON DANGERFIELD

Copyright, 1916, by T. C. McClure.

"What we want," said the senior partner eagerly, "is young blood in this venture, for it means the command of the whole coast trade for us. Whoever we send must go because one of us knows him intimately."

"Quite right," assented Caldwell, the middle aged junior.

"I really can't recommend any one," pursued the other. "I thought to turn the whole matter over to you, but I think," he smiled pleasantly—"that I can suggest a man whose fitness you could at once decide on."

Caldwell returned the smile. "All right," he said confidently. "You know I rather pride myself on being a good judge of a man—that is, if I've had any chance to study him."

"Best chance in the world," said the senior, with a touch of enthusiasm—he had no boys of his own. "I mean your son."

"My son?" Caldwell stammered. "Certainly. He's as fine a youngster as I know. Just twenty-five and burning for a chance to do something. Told me himself that he wanted to work."

"He—never seemed to take any interest in the firm before," objected Caldwell, reddening visibly.

"I know it. But it seems this new opening—the change of section—has awakened him. He was as pleased as punch when I told him I'd talk the affair over with you."

"Fact of the matter, Dobson," said Caldwell after an embarrassed pause, "is just this—it's exactly the chance I'd best like the boy to have. But you said, and I understand this importance, that the man we send we must know intimately."

"But your own son!" ejaculated Dobson. "Who else would you?"

"Who else could I know so well?" said Caldwell desperately. "That's what you'd say, Dobson, because you have no sons—indeed, no children at all. Consequently you can't understand how matters go nowadays with us business men. I'm self made, just as our business is. To keep things going I've scarcely ever taken off my harness. Harness hasn't made me blind. I don't say that, but what opportunity has it left me for an intimate acquaintance with John?"

"Nonsense, man! You show a remarkable knowledge of every clerk we employ. I believe you have literally turned 'em inside out!"

"They are clerks! It was part of the business. But John—he may not be competent; the strain may crush him. He would do all he possibly could. But what are his capabilities? I can't ruin our firm even for my son."

"Good Lord!" said Dobson cynically. "If this is your modern father!"

"You needn't use that tone," said Caldwell defensively, flushing a deeper red. "If I had stopped to think, Dobson—if I'd had time to think of this—I wouldn't have been forced to this confession. But I'm no worse than the rest. Take Jackson and Reed and Kimball. Ask them what their sons really are aside from being college fellows who are well supplied with everything and who they believe in, of course. They couldn't tell you. They know their clerks—they have to—as they never will know the capabilities of their sons."

"AM I BREAKING IN ON A CONFERENCE, DAD?" HE LAUGHED.

"Good Lord!" said Dobson again like an irritating echo of himself.

"Of course I know there are exceptions, but that's where the boy has shown tastes in common with his father. Has gone into the business in detail of his own accord. John never had much in common with me. How could he? I'm just a business man, while he—he's had a chance to enjoy life. His mother says there's nobody like him; that the girls all run after him. I know myself," he added, with fatherly pride, "that it does me good to look at him." Then, with a return to dejection, "But that's not business."

"No," assented Dobson, "that's not business."

As he spoke the office door swung open without warning, and a broad shouldered, finely groomed figure, eager, alert, swung into the room unceremoniously.

"Am I breaking in on a conference, dad?" he laughed.

"Not at all! Not at all!" said Dobson, rising hurriedly and taking the answer on himself. "I am just going out."

He made good his escape and caught himself emitting a whistle as he went down the elevator.

"And that's the man," he ejaculated inwardly. "Who told me to a fraction last week where the bookkeeper's money went, what his personal habits were, what the man's breaking strain was to a hair. I guess he's an exception about his son. And yet, come to think, I don't know."

Up at the office John regarded his father with a joyous certainty which annoyed his parent excessively. "Dobson has been telling me," said the elder, making the plunge, "that you want to take charge of this new development. You know you gave me to understand you never intended to go in with us; that you were fitted for something higher—something literary, I believe."

"That's what I thought, but I was a silly ass," said his son, with refreshing frankness. "The fellows at college said my verses and short stories were the very best ever turned out by any member of my class. Perhaps they were, but when I tried them on your genuine editor the fish wouldn't bite at all. Of course, my friends and Eleanor—I mean Miss Storrs—quoted the old maxim to me, 'Ad astra per aspera,' and—"

"Talk English, will you?" interrupted his father impatiently. "If I'd wasted my time studying that stuff you would have been in the gutter now."

"I dare say," said the young fellow good humoredly. "What I want to do now, since I'm a failure at prose and verse, is to go in for something solid. You see—I've got some one else to think of besides myself."

"Some one else?"

"Truth of the matter is I'm—engaged."

"To who?"

"I wish he would learn to say to whom," thought the boy. Aloud he said respectively, "Elinor Storrs."

"Got any money?"

"Only a very little, and I've merely what you are good enough to let me have on allowance. But give me a chance on this opening, and I'll make a fortune for the firm and for myself. I've written rhymes, but I'm practical for all that."

"You may be," said his father grimly. "The trouble is I haven't the pleasure of your acquaintance."

John Caldwell stared, astounded beyond words. The few curt sentences that followed enlightened him. The boy's head dropped.

"I've done wrong," said his father humbly.

John Caldwell flung up his head.

"It's more my fault than yours, dad," he said impulsively. "I had time to come out to you, and I didn't. Do you know, dad, we had a tenor in college devoted to mournful airs, and many a time I've heard him at that old song:—

"Strangers yet after years of life together. After fair and stormy weather! Why thus joined, why ever met, If they must be—strangers yet!"

"By Jove, I never thought it would come home to me so! But we'll get on another footing if you will accept"—he rose and held out his warm young hand—"the pleasure of my acquaintance."

Mutely the father rose also and clasped it. As they stood together tears lay in the eyes of both.

Lord Kelvin and the Teapot.

Domestic science has of recent years adopted the phraseology of the laboratory and become the favorite field of chemists and economists. Many years ago, however, it was still a novelty to be treated not flippantly, perhaps, but with less seriousness than it receives today. It was with something like joy therefore that a few students admitted to the soubert meetings of the Royal Scientific Society of Edinburgh heard Lord Kelvin announce "Tea Cozies" as the subject of his paper for the evening.

In that bleak land, where the afternoon cup of tea is the universal habit, the padded hood to slip over the teapot and arrest the dissipation of its heat is everywhere in use. Lord Kelvin had made an exhaustive study of radiation in proportion to the surface of the teapot and wished to show that the surface of the teapot might be reduced to a size where the cozy would no longer keep it warm, but make it actually colder. The boy on the back seat listened eagerly. Here at last was a practical use for science. By manufacturing teapots of scientifically exact proportions the cumbersome tea cozy might be dispensed with and one's fortune made. Through endless formulae the lad tried to follow the course of the argument. At last Lord Kelvin reached his conclusion. "The proper size, in short, for the ideal teapot," he announced, "is approximately 'at of an ordinary garden pea.'—reper's Weekly.

Costard-monger.

The word costard-monger is now used of an itinerant fruit seller. It was formerly spelled costard-monger and in this form appears in Drant's "Ilornee," to translate the Latin word "pomarius."

Literally it means costard seller, costard being a kind of apple, the name of which Murray connects with coste, a rib.

Some etymologists connect it with costard, assuming that the pulp of apples was used in preparing this delicacy, but there is no real reason for this, since the "custard apple," mentioned in Dampier's "Voyages" (1699), is quite different fruit from the middle English costard.

Some connect it also with "costard," the humorous name for a head: "Take him over the costard with the hilt of thy sword"—Shakespeare. But it seems more probable that the head was called after the apple than the apple after the head.

The termination "monger" simply means a dealer or trader, as in fell-monger and ironmonger, and is derived from the Anglo-Saxon word "mangian," to traffic or barter, which is akin to the Latin "mango," a dealer who sets off and polishes up his wares.—London Standard.

Disastrous Wrecks.

Carelessness is responsible for many a railway wreck and the same causes are making human wrecks of sufferers from Throat and Lung troubles. But since the advent of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, even the worst cases can be cured, and hopeless resignation is no longer necessary. Mrs. Lois Cragg of Dorchester, Mass., is one of many whose life was saved by Dr. King's New Discovery. This great remedy is guaranteed for all Throat and Lung diseases by John E. Daly Druggist. Price 50c, and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

How to Make Paste For Scrapbooks.
Take half a teaspoonful of starch, same of flour, pour on a little boiling water, let it stand a minute, add more water, stir and cook it until it is thick enough to starch a shirt bosom. It spreads smooth, sticks well and will not mold or discolor paper. Starch alone will not make good paste.

How to Stop Escaping Gas.
A gas escape can be stopped by rubbing a little soap on the pipe at the point where the leakage occurs. This will not prevent the necessity of a visit from the plumber, but will enable you to wait for his coming with calmness. If you find gas is escaping open the windows and let the gas in the room escape before you hunt for the damage in the pipe with a light. When plenty of fresh air has blown out the accumulated gas from the room then you may search for the escape, but never take a light into a room smelling of gas till you have done this, for by doing so you risk an explosion.

Not a Sick day Since.

"I was taken severely sick with kidney trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad. of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and soon thereafter was entirely cured, and have not seen a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney troubles and General Debility." This is what B. S. Bass, of Fremont, N. C. writes. Only 50c, at John E. Daly Druggist.

This is the season when Montgomery Ward & Co's fall catalogue goes to its readers. When a novel sells 100,000 copies book reviewers give it a good deal of attention, but nobody seems to think that the catalogue of a great mail order house is a literary event. Yet the influence that such a book has on the lives of hundreds of thousands of people, and upon trade, transportation, mail revenues and manufactures is prodigious. The novel of the moment is petty beside it. The Montgomery Ward catalogue for this fall is No. 72. It contains 1,124 pages, or 2,980 feet of columns. More than 70,000 separate articles are illustrated and described, and the book costs nearly a dollar to publish and mail. The firm now has some 2,000,000 customers on its mailing lists, and the edition probably approximates this number. Ninety carloads of paper were used in its making, and in the height of the mailing season between 15,000 and 20,000 requests for the book are received daily. To herald its appearance the firm sends out a sixteen-page brochure called.

Try for Health

222 South Peoria St.,
Chicago, Ill., Oct. 7, 1902.
Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Surgeon, Dundas

Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one supreme effort to be well. You do not need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and do a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

FOR THE CHILDREN

Obedient Edwin.
In the days when Edwin A. Abbey was a small boy he had the habit of critically scrutinizing every dish that was set before him at the table, much to the embarrassment of his family. His frequent dismissals from the table were ineffectual, and something had to be done to work a cure, says the Ladies' Home Journal.
"Eddie," said his mother one day, "I heard thee speak about going to Cousin Martha's for dinner next Sunday, and I am afraid we will have to make thee stay at home until thee learns politeness at the table. Thy picking at food would mortify me."
This threatened deprivation reduced the boy to tears, and after he had solemnly promised not to look at everything according to his habit he was told that he might go.
The day came, and a large and merry family gathered to do justice to a tempting meal. Each of the little folks had a glass of delicious rich country milk at his place.
Noticing that Edwin was surreptitiously glancing at his glass, Mrs. Abbey observed with a well understood meaning, "Edwin, why is thee not drinking thy milk?"
With a determined air the boy hastily picked up the glass and, shutting his eyes as tight as possible, gulped its contents down.
This sudden procedure attracted the attention of all the guests, and, fearing at least a severe scolding, the boy exclaimed: "I did it, mother. I—I swallowed it!"
"Swallowed what?" hurriedly asked Mrs. Abbey, now more alarmed than amused.
"Those two flies that got in my milk, but I swallowed them, mother; I swallowed them!"

A Trick With Figures.
Ask a friend to put down four figures which you are not supposed to see. Let him add these up and subtract the sum from the original figures. Then let him strike out any figure in the result and tell you the sum of the remaining figures. You can instantly tell him what figure he struck out. The modus operandi is easy and depends on the esoteric qualities of 9. He puts down, say, 7,428. Add up these figures—21, which subtract and get 7,407. Cross out, say, 7. This leaves the sum of the remaining figures 11, which he announces. Mentally subtract 11 from the next highest multiple of 9, which is 18, and you get 7, which was the figure crossed out.

Ellen Terry's Toe.
When Ellen Terry was a little girl, about ten years old she played Puck in for "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and she had to make her appearance through the stage floor on a trap door. The trap door was shut too soon, and one of the child's feet was caught. She screamed with pain, and Mrs. Charles Kean whispered to her, "Be a brave girl, Nellie. Finish your part, and you shall play Arthur in 'King John'." The trap door by this time was opened, but the child's toe was broken. She, however, pluckily pulled herself together and finished her speech.—Exchange.

Why Chinese Ride Women's Bicycles.
The first bicycle dealers who tried to sell wheels to the Chinese were surprised to find that there was a big and ready demand for women's wheels, but practically none for men's wheels. Yet none of the bicycle drummers could report having seen many women, if any, riding the machines. The mystery was explained finally when it was learned that the Chinese men preferred the women's wheels because the skirts that form part of their costumes made it difficult to straddle the diamond frame of the men's wheels.

England's Rhymed Calendar.
England has many old adages, but none more popular than the following:
Monday's child is fair of face,
Tuesday's child is full of grace,
Wednesday's child is full of woe,
Thursday's child has far to go,
Friday's child is loving and giving,
Saturday's child has to work for a living,
But the child that is born on the Sabbath day
Is bonny and bright and good and gay.

Lather Before Shave.
Margie had often watched her father shave himself, and one day when an old colored man came to whitewash the back fence she looked on in silent contemplation for a few minutes and then asked:
"Say, mister man, is you goin' to shave ze fence's whiskers on?"

Was Prepared.
Tommy (mysteriously)—I shall have lots of cake all for myself.
Mother—Oh! Has auntie promised you some?
Tommy (with withering scorn)—No; I've planted seed cake in the garden.

Mother's Boys.
The children sat in the fading light, Building their castles with keen delight. Said fearless Fred, "I mean to be a sailor brave on the deep blue sea."
Said roguish Phil, with a twinkling eye, "I'll be a soldier by and by."
"And I'll be a lawyer," said noisy Joe, "And I'll climb to the Judge's bench, I know."

Said thoughtful John, in a timid voice, "To preach, I think, would be my choice." But never a word said the family pet As he sat in 'the midst of the noisy set.
"And what will my Charley be?" I said. He lifted his bonny, curly head And looked at me with his bright blue eyes.
"I'll be my mother's boy!" he cries. And I pray, as all shall take their place, Or land or sea, in life's great race, That their loyal hearts may still rejoice, Though near or far, to be mother's boys. —Washington Star

CARE OF SEWING MACHINES

How to Clean and Keep Them in Good Order.
A sewing machine must not be expected to run well unless it is kept clean and oiled as often as necessary, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. Keep a soft duster always in one of the side drawers and use it every time you sit down to the machine. Sometimes it may be necessary to use a little brush with stiff bristles to get into the crevices or a soft, fine twine to draw between parts to get out the dust and lint.
The matter of oiling depends altogether upon how much the machine is used. Do not drench the machine with oil, but put a drop or two in each little hole designed for it and nowhere else. When about to sew wipe with the duster the bottom of the shoulder on the left hand side, through which the steel bars of the presser foot and needle socket descend. This is where the oil comes from that sometimes makes unsightly spots on the work. When not in use keep the machine covered and the leather strap slipped off the large wheel. It will last longer and stretch less if this precaution is taken. If the machine stand in one of the living rooms and there are young children in the house, release the device which most modern machines have at the right hand for connecting the driving wheels with the upper parts. Probably a good deal of wear and tear will thus be avoided, and, if necessary, keep the machine locked.

How to Prepare Raspberry Cup.
To prepare raspberry cup, an ideal drink, crush one quart each of raspberries and currants with a wooden spoon. Add one pound of sugar and a quart of water. Bring slowly to the boiling point and allow it to boil for ten minutes. Strain through a jelly bag, allow to cool, chill on ice and serve. Add more sugar if not sweet enough.

How to Prevent Hangnails.
Always keep a lemon on your washing stand, and after thoroughly washing and drying your hands dig the tips of the fingers into the lemon till the nails are quite covered, says the New York News. Lemon juice is invaluable for the nails, removing stains and keeping them altogether in good condition. Always after washing your hands push the skin around the base of the nails gently back, using the towel for this purpose. You will be surprised to see how this improves them. Rub lemon or Otto Erdman has been in dry-pan and will leave the latter part of the week for Dexterville where he takes charge of the machine room of the table factory. His family remain here for a short time until Erdman gets located in his new town.

How to Pack Lilacs or the Violets.
An excellent way to insure the good condition of valley lilacs when they are to be sent through the mail is to arrange them in small bunches with damp cotton wound around the stems and cover the clusters with green leaves. The box in which the flowers are packed should be lined with paraffin paper.

How to Make Chocolate For Invalids.
Frothed chocolate is a beverage much appreciated by invalids. The following recipe is a very excellent one: Cook in a clean granite basin until smooth and shiny two squares of chocolate, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one level saltspoonful of salt and two tablespoonfuls of hot water or milk. Then add gradually, stirring all the time, a scant quart and a half of warmed milk. When smooth and bubbly whip lightly with an egg beater. Flavor with a half teaspoonful of vanilla. Have ready a half pint of cream whipped to a froth, put a tablespoonful in each cup and pour the hot chocolate over it.

How to Fry Soft Shelled Crabs.
Lift the side points of the crabs and remove the fringe under them, cut off the eyes and pull off the sand bags under the stomach. Wash the crabs, roll in salted flour and fry in hissing butter, turning them frequently.

How to Make a Traveling Case.
If something less expensive than a dress suit case, but equally capacious, is required, make a linen or a denim cover for one of the oblong pasteboard boxes so much used in delivering goods. Tan colored linen, dark red denim, brown hollands—any one of these makes a stout, serviceable cover. Stiffen two straps with an interlining of canvas, stitch many rows on these to make them strong and fasten with small metal buckles. This traveling case will cost so little that you can afford the working of your initials on one of the sides.

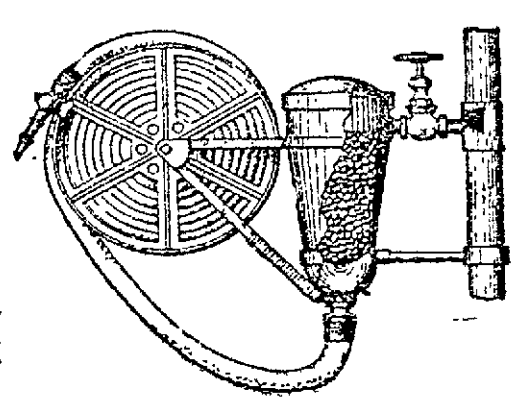

To Put Out a Blazing Chimney.
To extinguish a chimney on fire take a large handful of sulphur and throw it into the fire. When the sulphurous fumes ascend they will at once put out the fire.

How to Make Tooth Powder.
For those who like to prepare their own tooth powder the following is an inexpensive and very good formula: Mix two ounces of pulverized borax with four ounces of precipitated chalk; add an ounce each of powdered myrrh and pulverized orris. Sift through fine bolting cloth, and it is ready for use. Tooth powder bottles with adjustable covers, such as shop powder is put in, may be saved and filled with this homemade product.

How to Kill Crickets.
To kill crickets place cucumber peel on the floor near their hiding places at night. This is also most destructive to black beetles.

NEW FIRE EXTINGUISHERS

Combines Water and Chemicals Through Simple Device.
While the use of water in fire fighting is still indispensable and probably always will be, the householder of this day need not await the arrival of the fire engines and professional or volunteer fire fighters to extinguish the flames which are destroying the house. The scientists have long since suggested and made practicable the use of chemicals as a fire quenching agent, and many an incipient blaze is easily put out by exhausting the oxygen upon which it feeds. Perhaps few people understand the principle upon which these hand extinguishers work, simply knowing that they have a chemical extinguisher for use in case of necessity, but it is more than the simple wetting down of the burning material which most of these devices accomplish.

SAVES WORK BY FIREMEN.

The known fact that fire cannot exist without oxygen has been taken advantage of and formulas concocted which have the property of removing this constituent from the atmosphere and actually starving the fire to death. That is the purpose of the extinguisher here shown, which is intended particularly for factory and store use in combination with comparatively small storage tanks at the top of the building.

Only a small quantity of water with almost no pressure is required for this apparatus, as the mingling of the water ever so slowly with the chemicals contained in the cylinder in front of the valve will create immediately sufficient pressure to force the newly formed chemical compound through the nozzle. Hyposulphite of soda is contained in the cylinder, and as soon as the water comes in contact with this substance a gas is formed, driving the solution out of the hose and absorbing the oxygen in proximity to the fire.

NEW DENTAL METAL.

Discovered by Man Who Knows How to Temper Copper.
James H. Duffy of East Machias, Me., who claims to have discovered last year the secret, long lost, of tempering copper, brass, lead and aluminum, now announces that he has invented a new dental metal similar to that now used for casting molds for rubber plates and for crown and bridge work. For these purposes a metal is required that will both heat and cool quickly, and Duffy claims that his metal, while possessing that quality, can also be produced at about one-fourth the cost of the metal now in use. Local dentists have tried it, and samples have been sent to dentists in Boston and New York, who report that it is entirely satisfactory.

When Duffy announced that he had rediscovered the method of tempering copper he exhibited a hatchet, a razor and other implements which had fine and hard edges and which he declared to be tempered copper. He then invented a metal for journal bearings which he claimed to be superior to Babbitt metal and only about one-tenth as expensive. This metal was tried in sawmills at East Machias and is said to have proved all that the inventor claimed for it.

Duffy says that a lumber mill owner in Minneapolis came to Machias for the purpose of purchasing this invention, but that he declined to sell or even entertain an offer. He declares that none of his secrets is for sale at any price.

A Thirty-two Wheel Car.

A private car has recently been built by the Bethlehem Steel company for its own use. The company is supplying some very large castings for a 12,000 ton forging press for the Carnegie Steel company, and this car is for their transportation. Both iron and steel castings are being supplied, some of the latter being of extraordinary size. This car has sixteen wheel trucks connected by bridge trusses 61 feet 10 inches long and 6 feet deep at the center. The distance between the king bolts is 64 feet. The car is 103 feet 10 1/2 inches long over the couplers, 10 feet 2 1/4 inches high and 9 feet 9 inches wide. It weighs 196,420 pounds and has a rated capacity of 300,000 pounds.

Underground Mail Service.

By an ordinance granting rights of way to a company in Chicago an underground mail and parcel service is provided for. The company intends to use the tunnels not only for telephone lines, but will also carry newspapers, mail matter and merchandise; but passenger traffic is prohibited. The company is to have fifty miles of tunnels in operation in ten years and must have facilities for 20,000 phones in five years, while at the end of twenty-six years all tunnels and conduits are to become the property of the city.

When Most Deaths Occur.

That a great majority of all deaths occur between 1 and 8 o'clock a. m. is shown by the record of 5,000 cases presented to the British Medical association by Dr. Haviland. Forty per cent more deaths occur in the fifth hour of the morning than in the tenth hour.

It Keeps Them Squirming

The following will tell you what one Stalwart paper, whose editor has had much to say against the governor, calling him a grafter, fanatic, populist, democrat, and everything else bad he could think of, would do in case Governor La Follette were nominated again. The clipping is from the Merrill Advocate:

THE Wausau Pilot wants THE ADVOCATE to declare whether it—THE ADVOCATE—will support Governor La Follette if he is nominated for a third term. THE ADVOCATE is not crossing bridges just now, but we can say, and that with truth and sincerity, that we will not support any candidate of party that stands for 16 to 1 referendum, municipal ownership and all that kind of dangerous nonsense. While we consider "Little Bob" a bad egg politically, there are a good many redeeming qualities about him over that of the average modern Democrat.

It is really amusing to an outsider to see the squirms that are indulged in by the Stalwart editors. They want to rip the governor up the back but they do not want to get in any position where they cannot hedge in case it should become necessary if the governor is renominated. It must be pretty tough to be so situated that you don't know where you are at any time, and at the same time be in a position where you want to make everybody believe you know all about it. The governor may be somewhat of a politician himself, but he is not any more snaky than the newspaper man who puts in all of his time telling his subscribers what a misfit he is and then when he is nominated, flops over and supports him just as if he had been telling what a good fellow he was all the time.

The Post Office frauds are not the only ones that are causing sleepless nights and bad half-hours to many political patriots. Evidence is accumulating that huge land frauds amounting in value to $40,000,000 have been discovered and that six United States Senators, several Representatives and numerous government officials are mentioned in connection with the frauds, though Secretary Hitchcock, of the Interior Department, is continuously entering strenuous denials. The frauds in connection with the Indian lands now being investigated, has only just begun, and rumors of other frauds in departments are filling the air at Washington. This delay in exposing what has already been discovered may, as in the Post Office scandal, be made for the purpose of allowing the statute of limitations to get in its work and permit other Republican patriots to escape the toils of the law.

Fourth assistant Postmaster General Bristow has handed in his report on the recent postoffice frauds, and it is said that the report contains over one hundred and ten thousand words with appendices sufficient to make nearly one million words. If the republicans want to keep the general public in the dark concerning the postoffice frauds they should publish the report in full, as very few men have the time to pick the meat out of a million words, as the report would occupy about one thousand columns set in the same type that the Tribune is printed in.

Was too Enterprising.

Last week Wednesday when the Marshfield News came out there was a scare head announcing that "Billy Smith" had been sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary. The paper reached this city at 10 o'clock Thursday morning and as Smith was not sentenced until about eleven o'clock the same day the announcement was rather premature. The Marshfield Democrat copied the announcement of the News and of course had it wrong also. Many a Newspaper has lost its reputation for reliability thru making a poor guess, and it is generally better to be sure you are right before going ahead.

A Policeman's Testimony.

J. N. Patterson, night policeman of Nashua, Ia., writes, "Last winter I had a bad cold on my lungs and tried at least a half dozen advertised cough medicines and had treatment from two physicians without getting any benefit. Already says Mr. Herbst, there have been over 400 bushels of apples gathered and placed in cold storage in St. Louis. This fruit is the best that the agents of the association have been able to find this fall in Wisconsin. There are more than 200 varieties.

WAUSAU 5, GRAND RAPIDS 0.

Visitors Win Football Game on Saturday by a Very Small Margin.

The game on Saturday between the Grand Rapids and Wausau team resulted in a victory for the Wausau boys, but it was a very small margin, and many even claim that the decision was not a fair one that gave Wausau the game and are inclined to censure the umpire for this action in the matter. It is certain that his decision in the matter lost the game for Grand Rapids, for had the touchdown that was made by McCarthy counted it would have changed the entire play of the game, and it is entirely probable that neither side would have scored after this one count.

The game started by Wausau kicking off to Grand Rapids. Muir caught the ball but was downed and before any great advance had been made Wausau had got the ball on downs. Wausau steadily advanced the ball by small gains until it was close to the Grand Rapids goal when Grand Rapids held them on downs and got possession of the ball. The home team then made steady advances for about thirty yards, but were unable to keep possession of the ball and lost it on downs.

Wausau then took the ball and advanced it five yards. Then the visitors made an offside play and were penalized ten yards. The visitors tried twice to make up the lost ground but were unable to do so, and fearing to lose the ball on downs, punted. The ball was caught by Wilbur McCarthy, who sized up the situation in a twinkling. He skirted the right end and raced down the field to the goal a distance of ninety yards, with the Wausau boys making frantic efforts to reach him and stop him in his mad race. But he was going at a ten second clip, and the one or two of the Wausau team did get near enough to bother him some what, he was able to throw them off and continue on his way until he carried the ball over the line.

It is seldom that such an exciting event occurs in a football game. The crowd simply went wild, and the boys picked Wilbur up and would have carried him down town on their shoulders had it not been necessary to continue the game. The surprise of the crowd can be imagined when the umpire announced that there had been an offside play on the part of Grand Rapids and as a consequence he not only refused to count the touchdown made by Grand Rapids, but also gave the ball to Wausau and penalized Grand Rapids ten yards.

So far as can be learned the umpire did not see the offside play himself, consequently had no right to say there was one, but his attention was called to the matter by a Wausau man in the crowd.

The decision of the umpire brought the ball well into Grand Rapids territory and Wausau took the ball and advanced it by small gains until a touchdown was scored. Goal was missed and the score was 5 to nothing in favor of Wausau.

Wausau then kicked off to Grand Rapids and the home team had advanced the pigskin too near the center of the field when the time was called for the first half.

At the beginning of the second half Grand Rapids kicked off to Wausau. Wausau caught the ball and were downed on the thirty yard line. Then Wausau made steady advances until well into Grand Rapids territory when they lost the ball on a fumble.

Then Grand Rapids carried the ball back about seven yards when they lost it on downs. Wausau then took the ball and advanced steadily toward Grand Rapids goal and it looked very much like another touchdown for Wausau, but the home boys rallied and succeeded in holding the visitors for downs just one yard from the goal line. Then Grand Rapids took the ball and advanced it four yards, were given five yards on account of a foul by Wausau, and the time was called with the ball about ten yards from the Grand Rapids goal.

It was an exciting game and the boys did very well considering that they were playing against a heavier lot of men all the way thru than they were. There was no question that the Wausau team was a trifle the stronger of the two on several points, but they had nothing like the walk-away they had figured on before the game started.

Another Lodge Organized.

A New fraternal and insurance order was organized in this city on Thursday evening, the new lodge being a branch of the Modern Brotherhood of America. It starts out with 22 members and at the organization on Thursday evening the following officers were elected:

C. L. Reed, president; H. S. Wagner, vice president; Frank Able, secretary; Mrs. Louis Menier, treasurer; Mrs. Joseph Robinson, chaplain; Louis Menier, watchman; and Severe Preman, sentry. The organization was effected by State Manager D. N. Davis of Marinette. The new order admits both men and women.

Death of Mrs. Sparks.

Mrs. Eugene Sparks died last Wednesday afternoon after an illness that had extended over a period of several years. She was forty-six years of age, and has lived her entire life in this city. She is survived by her husband and ten children, and is mourned by a large circle of friends in this city and vicinity.

The funeral occurred on Friday from the home on the east side, Rev. W. A. Peterson officiating.

Matthew C. Meddaugh, who lived on the west side, died Tuesday morning at the age of 43, the immediate cause of his death being paralysis.

Mr. Meddaugh had been in rather poor health for the past two years, he having been affected with rheumatism. He recovered from this and was able to get to work again, when he was prostrated last winter with pneumonia. Since then he has been in rather poor health and has gradually failed.

He leaves a wife and one child, a boy about eight years old. The funeral occurred this morning at 10 o'clock from the Methodist church, Rev. W. A. Peterson conducting the services. His brothers John, George and Robert from Plainfield and Daniel of City Point were here to attend the funeral.

City Council Meets.

A regular monthly meeting of the city Council occurred last night with a good attendance of Aldermen. There was very little business transacted outside of allowing a number of bills and doing the regular routine work.

The police officers reported that a number of tramps have been hanging about during the nice weather, and it was decided to put them at work in the future when they insisted on making their home here. It is thought that when the tramps realize that they will have to work when they visit the city that they will soon learn to give the place a wide berth.

Mayor Wheelen also states that it had been brought to his notice that the different firms dealing in dynamite were in the habit of keeping large quantities of the explosive stored on their premises about the city and as this was a dangerous custom he appointed a committee to investigate the matter and give the dealers and others some timely advice on the subject.

Charged With Robbery.

A dispatch from Glidden dated Nov. 3d, says:

"August Roebeck, Joseph Heabig of Marshfield, John Ward of Grand Rapids, and Joseph Shultz of Milwaukee have been arrested here by Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Hart, charged with highway robbery. On Sunday night Joseph Lindwall of Ashland was attacked by a gang of thugs on Main street, knocked unconscious, and relieved of $28 and a watch. The men in custody are charged with the crime."

Ward is well known in this city and lives here, and Schultz had also made his home here for a couple of years before going to Glidden, and was known among his companions in this city by the nickname of "Bucko."

BRIEF CITY ITEMS

Got 15 Years.—William Schmidt, the young fellow from Marshfield, was sentenced to fifteen years in Waupun on Thursday by Judge Webb, he having pleaded guilty to the charge of rape. Schmidt is not any too bright but he has proven by his actions that he is a dangerous character to be loose among decent people and it is doubtful if any one would have grieved any had he received longer sentence. Schmidt took his sentence rather hard and swore eternal vengeance against District Attorney Brazeau, but it is probable that in fifteen years he will have accumulated other grievances to brood over.

Looking for Granite.—Two men from the southern part of the state were in the city a couple of days last week for the purpose of looking over some granite in this vicinity. They claimed upon their departure that they found first class granite for quarrying purposes and also said that it was probable that they would be back here and open a quarry some time in the future. For reasons of their own they did not care to have their names mentioned in connection with the matter until something definite had developed.

Will Build Stable.—P. H. Davis has Architect W. M. Martin at work on a set of plans for his new lively stable which he intends to begin the erection of in the near future. The stable will be located on the lot next to the Bogger building and will be three stories high and eighty feet deep. The ground floor will be used for a stable, the second to keep rigs, and the top floor will be fitted up in a modern manner for living rooms. It will be of brick and Mr. Davis expects to have an up-to-date affair when it is completed.

Cofferdam Nearly Complete.—The Consolidated people have been engaged for a week past in rebuilding the cofferdam about the tailrace that was washed out by the high water, and it is again about completed. It is the desire to get this part of the work finished this fall if possible, as there are a number of large masses of rock in the direct path of the tailrace which would seriously impede the flow of water and must be taken out before an attempt is made to start the mill.

Halloween Pranks.—Our citizens did not suffer very severely last Saturday, notwithstanding the fact that it was halloween and a large number of the kid element was abroad on purpose to see what could be done to make it interesting for the old folks. Some signs were displaced, fences mutilated, awning ropes cut, and other things indulged in, but nothing serious happened to mar the serenity of the evening.

Reject Offer.—At a meeting of the directors of the Electric and Water company held on Thursday evening the offer of the Consolidated Water Power and Paper Co. to furnish power for the plant was rejected. The stockholders of the company are to hold a meeting later on in the month when something new may develop.

Special to Marshfield.—A special train will be run to Marshfield on Saturday, November 14th, for the purpose of allowing those who desire to do so attend the meeting of the Wood County Teachers association which meets in that city. The train will leave here at 7:45 in the morning and return the same evening.

Halloween Party.—The teachers of the public school and their friends celebrated Halloween in a fitting manner on Saturday evening by assembling at the sixth Ward Kindergarten room and indulging in various games and pastimes. They had refreshments and report a very pleasant evening.

Just Plain Drunks.—Tristram Warren of Adams County was arrested on Monday for being drunk and disorderly and being taken before Justice Cooper paid a fine of $2 and costs. Frank Dietrick was arrested on the 31st on the same charge and also paid a fine of $2 and costs.

Putting in Power.—The Electric & Water Company have installed a three horse power motor in the shoe factory of W. A. Dawes. The company also expects to put in a motor for Pavlick & Rick as soon as this firm gets into their new meat market.

Granted a Pension.—Mrs. Margaret J. Cole of Vesper was granted a pension of $8 a month last week by the government. The pension started on July 23d, 1900, and Mrs. Cole gets $305 pension. The pension was secured by T. J. Cooper of this city.

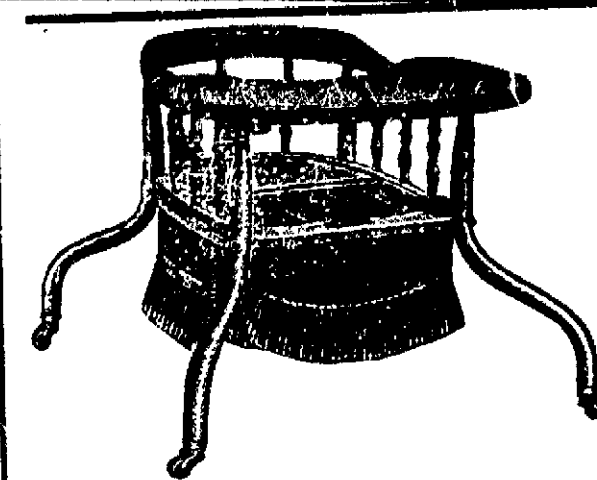

Going to Nekoosa.—The Woman's club goes to Nekoosa on Saturday where the members will meet with Mrs. J. E. Thomas. This meeting will take the place of the regular Monday evening meeting which would have occurred next Monday.

Taking in new Members.—The Equitable & Fraternal Union initiated a class of about twenty-four into that order on Tuesday evening. The lodge now has about 250 members in this city.

A Runaway Bicycle.

Terminated with an ugly cut on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill. It developed a stubborn ulcer unyielding to doctors and remedies for four years. Then Bucklin's Arnica Salve cured. It's just as good for Burns, Scalds, Skin Eruptions and Piles. 25c. at John E. Daly's Drug Store.

The introduction of a device in public schools to stimulate activity in study is looked forward to with some apprehension by school children. A copper contact plate in each chair will be connected by wire with a bunch of push buttons on the teacher's desk, with a battery on the floor. When a kid gets too easy the observing teacher will push the button, sending a stream of electricity into the delinquent that will at once tingle his vertebrae, take the curve out of his spine and make him think himself the victim of a rear end collision. It will set'em studying like sixty, and give a scintillating finish to scholarship and understanding that will make a dictionary seem rusty.—NeilsvilleTimes.

By ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

The SUICIDE CLUB

PART III

The Adventure of the Hansom Cabs

LIEUTENANT BRACKENBURY RICH had greatly distinguished himself in one of the lesser Indian wars. It was who took the chieftain prisoner with his own hand. His gallantry was universally applauded, and when he came home prostrated by an ugly fever and a protracted jungle fever society was prepared to welcome the lieutenant as a celebrity of minor order. But his was a character remarkable for unaffected modesty. Adventure was dear to his heart, but he cared little for adulation, and he waited at foreign watering places and in Algiers until the fame of his exploits had run through its nine days' vitality and begun to be forgotten. He arrived in London at last, in the early season, with as little observation as he could desire, and as he was an orphan and had none but distant relatives who lived in the provinces it was almost as a foreigner that he installed himself in the capital of the country for which he had shed his blood.

On the day following his arrival he dined alone at a military club. He shook hands with a few old comrades and received their warm congratulations, but as one and all had some engagement for the evening he found himself left entirely to his own resources. He was in dress, for he had entertained the notion of visiting a theater. But the great city was new to him. He had gone from a provincial school to a military college and thence direct to the eastern empire, and he promised himself a variety of delights in this world for exploration. Swinging his cane, he took his way westward. It was a wild evening, already dark, and now and then threatened rain. The succession of faces in the lamplight stirred the lieutenant's imagination, and it seemed to him as if he could walk forever in that stimulating city atmosphere and surrounded by the mystery of 4,000,000 private lives. He glanced at the houses and marveled what was passing behind those warmly lighted windows. He looked into face after face and saw them each intent upon some unknown interest, criminal or kindly.

"They talk of war," he thought, "but this is the great battlefield of mankind."

And then he began to wonder that he should walk so long in this complicated scene and not chance upon so much as the shadow of an adventure for himself.

"All in good time," he reflected. "I am still a stranger and perhaps wear a strange air. But I must be drawn into the eddy before long."

The night was already well advanced when a plump of cold rain fell suddenly out of the darkness. Brackenbury paused under some trees, and as he did so he caught sight of a hansom cabman making him a sign that he was disengaged. The circumstance fell in so happily to the occasion that he at once raised his cane in answer and had soon ensconced himself in the London gondola.

"Where to, sir?" asked the driver.

"Where you please," said Brackenbury.

And immediately, at a pace of surprising swiftness, the hansom drove off through the rain into a maze of villas. One villa was so like another, each with its front garden, and there was so little to distinguish the deserted lamp-lit streets and crescents through which the flying hansom took its way that Brackenbury soon lost all idea of direction. He would have been tempted to believe that the cabman was amusing himself by driving him round and round and in and out about a small quarter, but there was something business-like in the speed which convinced him of the contrary. The man had an object in view. He was hastening toward a definite end, and Brackenbury was at once astonished at the fellow's skill in picking a way through such a labyrinth and a little concerned to imagine what was the occasion of his hurry. He had heard tales of strangers faring ill in London. Did the driver belong to some bloody and treacherous association, and was he himself being whirled to a murderous death?

The thought had scarcely presented itself when the cab swung sharply round a corner and pulled up before the garden gate of a villa in a long and wide road. The house was brilliantly lighted up. Another hansom had just driven away, and Brackenbury could see a gentleman being admitted at the front door and received by several liveried servants. He was surprised that the cabman should have stopped so immediately in front of a house where a reception was being held, but he did not doubt it was the result of accident, and sat placidly smoking where he was until he heard the trap thrown open over his head.

"Here we are, sir," said the driver. "Here," repeated Brackenbury. "Where?"

"You told me to take you where I pleased, sir," returned the man, with a chuckle, "and here we are."

It struck Brackenbury that the voice was wonderfully smooth and courteous for a man in so inferior a position. He remembered the speed at which he had been driven, and now it occurred to him that the hansom was more luxuriously appointed than the common run of public conveyances.

"I must ask you to explain," said he. "Do you mean to turn me out into the rain? My good man, I suspect the choice is mine."

"The choice is certainly yours," replied the driver, "but when I tell you all I believe I know how a gentleman of your figure will decide. There is a gentleman's party in this house. I do not know whether the master be a stranger to London and without acquaintances of his own or whether he is a man of odd notions. But certainly I was hired to kidnap single gentlemen in evening dress, as many as I pleased, big military officers by preference. You have simply to go in and say that Mr. Morris invited you."

"Are you Mr. Morris?" inquired the lieutenant.

"Oh, no," replied the cabman. "Mr. Morris is the person of the house."

"It is not a common way of collecting guests," said Brackenbury, "but an eccentric man might very well indulge the whim without any intention to offend. And suppose that I refuse Mr. Morris' invitation?" he went on, "what then?"

"My orders are to drive you back where I took you from," replied the man, "and set out to look for others up to midnight. Those who have no fancy for such an adventure, Mr. Morris said, were not the guests for him."

These words decided the lieutenant on the spot.

"After all," he reflected as he descended from the hansom, "I have not had long to wait for my adventure."

He had hardly found footing on the sidewalk and was still feeling in his pocket for the fare when the cab swung about and drove off by the way it came at the former breakneck velocity. Brackenbury shouted after the man, who paid no heed and continued to drive away, but the sound of his voice was overheard in the house, the door was again thrown open, emitting a flood of light upon the garden, and a servant ran down to meet him, holding an umbrella.

"The cabman has been paid," observed the servant in a very civil tone, and he proceeded to escort Brackenbury along the path and up the steps. In the hall several other attendants relieved him of his hat, cane and palette, gave him a ticket with a number in return and politely hurried him up a stair adorned with tropical flowers to the door of an apartment on the first story. Here a grave butler inquired his name and, announcing "Lieutenant Brackenbury Rich," ushered him into the drawing room of the house.

A young man, slender and singularly handsome, came forward and greeted him with an air at once courtly and affectionate. Hundreds of candles of the finest wax lighted up a room that was perfumed, like the staircase, with a profusion of rare and beautiful flowering shrubs. A side table was loaded with tempting viands. Several servants went to and fro with fruits and goldlets of champagne. The company was perhaps sixteen in number, all men, few beyond the prime of life and, with hardly an exception, of a dashing and capable exterior. They were divided into two groups, one about a roulette board and the other surrounding a table at which one of their number held a bank of baccarat.

"I see," thought Brackenbury. "I am in a private gambling saloon, and the cabman was a tout."

His eye had embraced the details, and his mind formed the conclusion while his host was still holding him by the hand, and to him his looks returned from this rapid survey. At a second view Mr. Morris surprised him still more than on the first. The easy elegance of his manners, the distinction, amiability and courage that appeared upon his features, fitted very ill with the lieutenant's preconceptions of the subject of the proprietor of a hell, and the tone of his conversation seemed to mark him out for a man of position and merit. Brackenbury found he had an instinctive liking for his entertainer, and, though he chided himself for the weakness, he was unable to resist a sort of friendly attraction for Mr. Morris' person and character.

"I have heard of you, Lieutenant Rich," said Mr. Morris, lowering his tone, "and believe me I am gratified to make your acquaintance. Your looks accord with the reputation that has preceded you from India. And if you will forget for awhile the irregularity of your presentation in my house I shall feel it not only an honor, but a genuine pleasure besides. A man who makes a monthful of barbarian cavaliers," he added, with a laugh, "should not be appalled by a breach of etiquette, however serious."

and he admitted the sideboard and pressed him to partake of some refreshment.

"Upon my word," the lieutenant reflected, "this is one of the pleasantest fellows, and I do not doubt, one of the most agreeable societies in London."

He partook of some champagne, which he found excellent, and, observing that many of the company were already smoking, he lighted one of his own Manillas and strolled up to the roulette board, where he sometimes made a stake and sometimes looked smilingly on the fortune of others. It was while he was thus idling that he became aware of a sharp scrutiny to which the whole of the guests were subjected. Mr. Morris went here and there, ostensibly busied on hospitable concerns, but he had ever a shrewd glance at disposal. Not a man of the party escaped his sudden, searching looks. He took stock of the bearing of heavy losers, he valued the amount of the stakes, he paused behind couples who were deep in conversation, and, in a word, there was hardly a characteristic of any one present but he seemed to catch and make a note of it. Brackenbury began to wonder if this were indeed a gambling hell; it had so much the air of a private inquisition. He followed Mr. Morris in all his movements, and, although the man had a ready smile, he seemed to perceive, as it were under a mask, a haggard, careworn and preoccupied spirit. The fellows around him laughed and made their game, but Brackenbury had lost interest in the guests.

"This Morris," thought he, "is no idler in the room. Some deep purpose inspires him. Let it be mine to fathom it."

Now and then Mr. Morris would call one of his visitors aside, and after a brief colloquy in an anteroom he would return alone, and the visitor in question reappeared no more. After a certain number of repetitions this performance excited Brackenbury's curiosity to a high degree. He determined to be at the bottom of this minor mystery at once, and, strolling into the anteroom, found a deep window recess concealed by curtains of the fashionable green. Here he hurriedly disencumbered himself, nor had he to wait long before the sound of steps and voices drew near him from the principal apartment. Peering through the division, he saw Mr. Morris escorting a fat and ruddy personage, with somewhat the look of a commercial traveler, whom Brackenbury had already remarked for his coarse laugh and undebased behavior at the table. The pair halted immediately before the window, so that Brackenbury lost not a word of the following discourse:

"I beg you a thousand pardons," began Mr. Morris, with the most conciliatory manner, "and if I appear rude I am sure you will readily forgive me. In a place so great as London accidents must continually happen, and the best that we can hope is to remedy them with as small delay as possible. I will not deny that I fear you have made a mistake and honored by poor house by inadvertence, for, to speak openly, I cannot at all remember your appearance. Let me put the question without unnecessary circumlocution—between gentlemen of honor a word will suffice—under whose roof do you suppose yourself to be?"

"That of Mr. Morris," replied the other, with a prodigious display of confusion, which had been visibly growing upon him throughout the last few words.

"Mr. John or Mr. James Morris?" inquired the host.

"I really cannot tell you," returned the unfortunate guest. "I am not personally acquainted with the gentleman any more than I am with yourself."

"I see," said Mr. Morris. "There is another person of the same name farther down the street, and I have no doubt the policeman will be able to supply you with his number. Believe me, I felicitate myself on the misunderstanding which has procured me the pleasure of your company for so long, and let me express a hope that we may meet again upon a more regular footing. Meantime I would not for the world detain you longer from your friends. John," he added, raising his voice, "will you see that this gentleman finds his greatcoat?"

And with the most agreeable air Mr. Morris escorted his visitor as far as the anteroom door, where he left him, under conduct of the butler. As he passed, the window on his return to the drawing room Brackenbury could hear him utter a profound sigh, as though his mind was loaded with a great anxiety, and his nerves already fatigued with the task on which he was engaged.

For perhaps an hour the hansom kept arriving with such frequency that Mr. Morris had to receive a new guest for every old one that he sent away, and the company preserved its number undiminished. But toward the end of that time the arrivals grew few and far between and at length ceased entirely, while the process of elimination was continued with unimpaired activity. The drawing room began to look empty, the baccarat was discontinued for lack of a banker, more than one person, said good night of his own accord and was suffered to depart without expostulation, and in the meanwhile Mr. Morris redoubled in agreeable attentions to those who stayed behind. He went from group to group and from person to person with looks of the readiest sympathy and the most pertinent and pleasing talk. He was not so much like a host as like a hostess, and there was a feminine coquetry and condescension in his manner which charmed the hearts of all.

As the guests grew thinner Lieutenant Rich strolled for a moment out of the drawing room into the hall in quest of fresher air. But he had no sooner passed the threshold of the ante-chamber than he was brought to a dead halt by a discovery of the most surprising nature. The flowering shrubs had disappeared from the staircase. Three large furniture wagons stood before the garden gate. The servants were busy dismantling the house upon all sides, and some of them had already donned their greatcoats and were preparing to depart. It was like the end of a country ball, where everything has been supplied by contract. Brackenbury had indeed some matter for reflection. First, the guests, who were no real guests after all, had been dismissed, and now the servants, who could hardly be genuine servants, were actively dispersing.

Continued Next Week.

A Troublesome Ant.

In the state of Colombia there is a large ant (Atta cephalotes) which causes a great deal of injury to plantations. It attacks and carries off indiscriminately all kinds of foliage, and no sort of vegetation seems to come amiss to it. The quantity of foliage carried off by these ants is immense. A naturalist recently investigated the uses to which the ants put this mass of vegetable matter, and he ascertained that they employ it to make hotbeds, upon which their eggs are deposited to be hatched by the heat produced by the fermentation of the leaves. The ants do not eat these portions for food, and the larvae are fed upon a carefully selected diet. Once the brood is hatched, the ants clear away the hotbed, carrying out of their nest all the decomposed vegetable matter. This is thrown out in heaps apart, and in the large ant hills these heaps will contain bushels and upward.

How to Sweep.
There are in the doing of little things, even in housework, a right way and a wrong way—a good way and a bad way. Consider for a moment the item of sweeping with a broom. The next time you undertake it notice your broom. Do you find that you hold it, or move it rather, in front of you—the brush farther forward than the handle—with it a cloud of dust into the air and the space beyond? If so, try this way: Stand with the broom rather behind you, partly facing it—the brush farther back than the tip of the handle. Used in this way you will find that the dust rises no higher than the brush; that, in fact, little rises, but is gradually moved to one central point, where it may be easily gathered into the dustpan. Swept in this way, even a dusty room may be perfectly tidied without discomfort to any person who may be obliged to remain in it during the process.

A HOSPITAL FOR

SICK WATCHES

A fall causes many a watch to stop. The delicate staffs, jewels and pivots can not withstand such a shock, and snap right off. Should this occur to your watch it will be profitable for you to have us look at your watch at once. Every watchmaker can't fix a sick watch—he may patch it up but he must be a skilled mechanic to effect a permanent cure.

Clark's western Teacher's association at Chippewa Falls. During his absence students were appointed to take charge of his classes. He gave an interesting talk Monday concerning what he had seen and heard.

Monday morning Professor Brown (colored) of Mississippi, Superintendent of the negro school gave us an interesting talk on the Negro Problem in the South from an educational standpoint. He showed us plainly the need of better schools in the south.

Examinations are to be given in all studies Thursday and Friday. The A division is to take final in psychology and grammar and B division in psychology.

The school is to hold the Autumn Picnic Wednesday afternoon, after school.

Miss Anna Adamscheck and Miss M. Jape visited our school last week.

Miss Cora Fowler of Meehan visited our school last Friday.

This week finishes the first quarter of the school year.

He Could Hardly get up.

P. H. Duffy of Ashley, Ill., writes: "This is to certify that I have taken two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure and it has helped me more than any other medicine. I tried many advertised remedies, but none of them gave me any relief. My druggist recommended Foley's Kidney Cure and it has cured me. Before commencing its use I was in such a shape that I could hardly get up when once down." Sold at Johnson & Hill Co.

November Weather.

This month promises to be more than usually calm, with many of those peerless days which are not to be matched elsewhere in the world. The early morning of 1st and 2d will have thick, hazy mists, turning warm for the season during the day, developing first regular storm from 3d to 6th. A yellowish fog will obscure the atmosphere, there will be closeness and sultriness. Autumnal gales may be expected on the lakes and seas but they will likely fall to a minimum in frequency and force: when the storms cease there will be frost in the north, and the air will be nipping upon the upper Atlantic coast. Minor storms 9th and 10th. Golden days of warm, mellow sunshine will continue up to second regular storm period, 14th to 17th. New moon on the 18th will be a disturbing factor. Gathering storms with autumnal phenomena, tornadoes and much rain, probable in southern regions. Minor storms, 20th and 21st, will bring cloudiness and rains, snow in the north, calm, peaceful weather with temperature soft and charming, will become warmer and develop last regular storm period, 26th to 29th, which will provide Thanksgiving with storms of sleet and snow northward and rain southward. A wintry wave will follow these storms and a sharp change to colder harden the ground, sending a frost and freezing, with varying intensity, to most parts of the country.

Sherry has a new bridge across the old Mill Creek which will be completed in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Becker were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Cline Sunday.

The party given at F. W. Park's was well attended and all report a good time.

Leo Varshed has gone to work at Faush's camp for the winter.

Walter Cline has been on the sick list a few days this week.

Potatoes are very scarce in Sherry so all the buyers say.

Reverend Agnew was a caller at J. J. Iversons.

Physicians Prescribe it.

Many broad minded physicians prescribe Foley's Honey and Tar, as they have never found so safe and reliable remedy for throat and lung troubles as this great medicine. Sold by Johnson & Hill Co.

RUDOLPH.

The hotel which Peter Keyzer is having built is nearly completed. A hotel is what we needed badly, and it will be a big improvement to the town, for there was times when people came here on the late train had to go all over the neighborhood to find a place to stop for the night. It is understood that a free opening will be given on Tuesday night, Nov. 10th at the hotel.

The wedding of Crotteau-Krommenakker took place at the Catholic church on Wednesday morning. Miss Mary Krommenakker, sister of the bride and Jean Crotteau, cousin of the groom, acted as best man and bride's maid. In the evening a grand dance was given in Eiemler's hall to which the old as well as the young attending.

The bishop of La Crosse gave confirmation to a large crowd here on Tuesday. The church was tastily decorated for this purpose. The priest and also the Sisters did everything in their power to made the bishop's visit pleasant.

The town was kept lively last week by a show troupe coming here. The acting was pretty good, but what interested the people most was the performance of the dogs which were so well trained.

A large number attended the surprise party given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ouholt on Saturday evening. They were presented with a beautiful chair.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Petters drove to Grand Rapids Monday to consult a doctor about their baby girl who has not been feeling well for some time past.

A number of the Rudolph people attended the funeral on Sunday of the three young people who was drowned at Byron last week.

Miss Vivian Lyonnias departed for Milwaukee last Thursday and got back to her same position as nurse.

Mrs. Guy Barber of Marshfield, is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bat Sharkey, this week.

Mrs. Hoover of Lynar, will be the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Crotteau, for some time.

John Hassel who has been employed at Glendon for some time returned home on Saturday.

Charley Karaatz of Grand Rapids, visited with friends here Sunday.

Mr. Marsaw was visiting at Green Bay last week.

Anxious Moments.

Some of the most anxious hours of a mother's life are those when the little ones of the household have the croup. There is no other medicine so effective in this terrible malady as Foley's Honey and Tar. It is a household favorite for throat and lung troubles, and as it contains no opiates or other poisons, it can be safely given. Sold at Johnson & Hill Co.

ALTDORF.

Miss Mae Reusch our popular dress-maker has gone to Grand Rapids where she will work this winter.

O. J. Leu principal of the Nekoosa school spent Sunday with his family here.

A Few Douts for Hunters.

Don't pull a loaded gun towards you by the muzzle.

Don't carry a loaded gun into the house.

Don't point an unloaded or loaded gun, at a person, even in fun.

Don't walk ahead of a person with a loaded gun in his hands.

Don't climb through a fence while carrying your gun.

Don't, when hunting deer, shoot at every moving thing you see, before you know what you are shooting at. Be sure you supposed game is not a human being coming through the bushes. It is better to miss a dozen chances for good shots than to wound a man.

Don't shoot a high power rifle in the direction of a building, or in the directions where persons are working. Remember that a bullet travels a long distance, and that you cannot bring a dead man back to life, no matter how much you may grieve.

Don't carry your gun at a full cock unless you are trying to kill yourself or a friend.

John Boles had one of those chicken chowders for which he is famous, last Saturday evening, a goodly crowd partook thereof and pronounced it good.

John Steiner of Mauston spent a couple of days here last week helping to load two cars of potatoes which he bought of E. M. Copps & Co.

Mrs. C. T. Timm drank some carbolic acid which she supposed to be some medicine on Sunday morning. She is better at this writing.

A pleasant party gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Target on Saturday evening. Every one reports a fine time.

G. H. Munroe returned from Spring Creek Friday. He reports his wife was very ill as much improved.

Nearly every one was hunting last Sunday judging from the noise one could hear in the woods.

O. D. Billing's family and goods arrived Monday. We are glad to welcome them to Kellner.

Mrs. W. J. Granger is in your city for a few days recovering from a short sickness last week.

Wm Lytle made his weekly trip to Stevens Point on Sunday.

Dosen't Respect old age.

It's shameful when youth fails to show proper respect for old age, but just the contrary in the case of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They cut off maladies no matter how severe and irrespective of old age. Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Fever, Constipation all yield to this perfect Pill. 25c, at John E. Daly's Drug Store.

WITTER HOUSE.
No pay unless cured

The doctor's wonderful power of diagnosis, greatest of all gifts, enables him to determine the causes of obscure and chronic ailments and to apply certain remedies which effect certain, speedy and permanent cures. X-Ray examinations in appropriate cases upon reasonable notice.

Hope for the Afflicted.

Many hundreds of sufferers pronounced by other physicians as hopelessly incurable, have been restored to health by Dr. Secrist.

Letters of endorsement from many prominent clergymen and hundreds of grateful patients are on file in his office.

The doctor has devoted much time and attention in the French hospitals to the study of

All Special Diseases of Men and has imported many special medicines and appliances necessary to effect certain cures in the worst cases of Physical Weakness, Varicocoele, Impotency, Nervous Debility, Etc.

caused by youthful errors, night losses, general dissipation, improper treatment and neglect.

The doctor will forfeit $500 where a cure is guaranteed and not effected.

Kidney and Bladder diseases treated by new and eminently successful methods.

Catarrh in all its various forms; positive prompt and permanent cures always effected.

Club Feet, cross eyes, and all other deformities treated with special care and unfailing success.

Nervous Diseases, Epilepsy and diseases of the blood and skin always yield to the doctor's modern methods of treatment.

Piles cured permanently without detention from business and without the use of the knife.

Lung Troubles receive careful attention, and are always treated successfully, when not too long neglected.

Delay Is Dangerous.—Those who are chronically ailing should lose no time in consulting a special physician whose reputation for skill is so well and widely known.

Special attention given to

Diseases Peculiar to Women

No unnecessary exposure. No examination. No sacrifice of modesty. The doctor does not publish his patients' names except with their full consent and approval.
